Carolina Zimmermann

Carolina Zimmermann was born in Aachen in 1984. Prior to her studies at the University of Television and Film Munich, she worked as an editor for the Westdeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung and the Münchner Abendzeitung, among others, and as a freelance journalist for radio editorial offices of the Bayerischer Rundfunk. During her HFF studies in the screenplay department she received a scholarship for women from the Bavarian Ministry of Science and Art. Her short film "Kindergarten" (2018, screenplay and direction) was shown at national and international film festivals. Her final screenplay "Am Bipol gib't's keine Pinguine" (2019) was nominated in the category "Best Screenplay" at the Sehsuechte Festival. She is co-author of the Netflix original series "The Last Word". (Director: Aron Lehmann, Pola Beck. Production: Pantaleon Films), which has been on view since September 2020. She is currently developing fictional material in film and series format for, among others, Construction Film, Odeon Fiction and Pantaleon Films and is a guest lecturer in the script department at the HFF Munich.
